- The US Accounting Executive position entails overseeing Accounts Receivable (AR) and Accounts Payable (AP) functions within a multinational IT company specializing in IT-infrastructure solutions, including cybersecurity, networking, cloud services, and process automation.
- In Accounts Receivable, responsibilities include managing client invoicing processes, tracking payments, and ensuring timely collections.
- Accounts Payable, the role involves processing vendor invoices, verifying expenses, and managing payment schedules. Additionally, the position involves creating invoices accurately to reflect services provided in IT-infrastructure solutions. By managing these financial processes effectively, the US Accounting Executive contributes to maintaining healthy cash flows and financial stability for the company.
- Processing US customer deposits into accounts involves receiving payments from customers and crediting them to the company's accounts. This typically includes activities such as receiving checks, electronic funds transfers, or credit card payments from customers. Upon receipt, these deposits are recorded accurately in the company's accounting system, ensuring that customer accounts are properly credited and reconciled. Additionally, any associated fees or charges may be deducted, and records are updated accordingly. This process ensures timely and accurate recording of customer payments, facilitating cash flow management and financial reporting for the organization.
- Verifying expenses of US employees through Expensify involves reviewing and approving expense claims submitted by employees on a weekly basis. This process includes ensuring that expenses are compliant with company policies and relevant tax regulations. Using Expensify, verifiers can efficiently analyze expense reports, cross-checking receipts and documentation provided by employees. Once verified, expenses are approved for reimbursement, and a weekly report is generated summarizing approved expenses and any outstanding issues. This regular reporting ensures timely reimbursement to employees and enables management to monitor spending trends and budget adherence effectively. Preparing monthly dashboard reports Reviewing data for accuracy and validation Sharing the report with manager and Soliciting feedback for improvement, Updating, and refining the report regularly.

- I'm responsible for managing the financial operations related to both incoming and outgoing payments within a dynamic logistic company. On the Accounts Receivables side, I'll handle invoicing clients, ensuring accurate billing, and managing collections. Meanwhile, for Accounts Payables, I'll oversee processing vendor invoices, managing vendor relationships, and handling expense management. Utilizing accounting software like QuickBooks and SFM,
- reconcile vendor accounts, bank statements, and credit card transactions, ensuring financial accuracy. In case of any challenges, I'll liaise directly with the team via email for swift resolution. Your role will also involve supporting project teams through financial analysis, reconciliations, and project management controls. I interact with senior clients periodically, presenting financial analyses and providing project financial advice.
- Additionally, tasked with tracking expenditures, managing client billing, and handling receivable collections. As part of the project management office (PMO), I'll manage day-to-day contract activities and contribute to the team's growth through active involvement in various initiatives, focusing on project management, quality management, and risk management processes.
- In addition to the responsibilities, I'll also be tasked with compiling and generating reports on a weekly and monthly basis. These reports will provide insights into the company's financial performance, including revenue, expenses, outstanding invoices, and cash flow. By preparing these reports regularly, I will help senior management make informed decisions and track progress towards financial goals. This aspect of the role adds an essential layer of analysis and communication, ensuring that key stakeholders have access to accurate and up-to-date financial information for strategic planning and decision-making purposes.
